Did You Know?...

Meet Bob the Minion, from the movie ‘Despicable Me’. There has been a lot of talk regarding Bob’s distinct eye colour - one green eye and one brown eye, a condition which doctors call heterochromia. Heterochromia is defined as having different coloured eyes, due to the difference in the melanin pigment in the iris. This condition is usually hereditary, but sometimes caused by a medical condition or injury. Heterochromia is more common in cats, dogs, cattle and horses than in humans… but apparently it occurs in Minions.

Real Stories. Real People.

If my eyes are the windows to my soul, then I want to make sure they look amazing at all times

"I liked that the general cleanliness and hygiene levels have been maintained. The nurse is super efficient and always around to answer queries and allay your fears! The staff is all very prompt and always greets you with a smile."

"Excellent! Liked the transparency of the procedure, details given by the doctor, quick and clean execution of the procedure, fantastic staff! Nurses very warm, helpful and informative. Dr Shroff is extremely courteous and thoroughly professional. You are doing a fantastic job! Keep it as it is!"

"Very cooperative and helpful staff. The service went beyond my expectations."

"All staff were kind, caring and helpful. I particularly enjoyed seeing the operation being performed on my father on the TV monitor. The rooms were very comfortable and clean. Overall a good medical experience!"

I would gladly recommend your services as Ethics and Integrity are your base and framework.
